

Haiku

A tree bare of leaves
Its branches beseeching hands
Upstretched to the sky

I heard a bluebell
Ring . . . no, it was simply the
Laughter of a child.

When under each leaf
A tall ship sails pink seas
Man is a poet.